12 A bold<sup>1</sup> adventurer

Read the text and answer the questions below using 1 to 5 words.

In August 1875 Captain Matthew Webb of the British Navy stood on the pier in Dover in the south of England. He was wearing a bright red bathing costume<sup>2</sup>. He was 27 years old, and he wanted to swim across the English Channel.

From Dover in England to Calais in France it is about 21½ miles across the Channel. The water in the Channel is cold – between 14 and 18 degrees, the winds and tides are strong and the waves reach over a metre high. But Captain Webb had trained hard. His friends covered him with oil to keep out the cold. At about 1 p.m. he went into the water.

As he swam out to sea, the water became colder and colder. His friends, who were in a small boat, gave him hot drinks to keep him warm. He swam through the night. Tired but happy, Captain Webb walked slowly out of the sea on the French coast 21 hours and 45 minutes after he had left Dover. He was the first person to swim across the English Channel.

Captain Webb earned a lot of money swimming and doing all sorts of strange things in the water. He was married and had two children, but his love of adventure was strong.

One day he decided that he would swim across the great Niagara Falls on the Canada US border. The rapids<sup>3</sup> there are really frightening, and there are many dangerous rocks. He didn't tell his wife what he planned to do.

On July 24th 1883 special trains brought hundreds of excited people to Niagara Falls. They watched as Captain Webb jumped into the water. He was wearing the same red bathing costume he had worn to cross the English Channel eight years earlier. But after a short time, he threw up his arms and disappeared under the water. A few days later some fishermen found his body four miles away. His red bathing costume was torn to pieces.

Since the days of Captain Webb, swimmers from countries all over the world have swum across the Channel. Why do people do such things? Are they mad? For most of them the answer is this: they do it because it is an adventure – and nothing great is easy.
